HISTORY OF THE BRAND

Dr. John S. Pemberton invented Coca-Cola 1886 as a medicinal tonic, but it quickly became a popular soft drink. Under Asa Candler's direction, the foundation of The Coca-Cola Company in 1892 was a watershed moment, with aggressive marketing and the construction of a franchised bottling system.

The introduction of the famous contour bottle in 1915 and foreign expansion cemented Coca-Cola's position as a global brand. It launched new products like Diet Coke and bought other beverage brands throughout the twentieth century. Coca-Cola continued to innovate and focus on sustainability in the twenty-first century while remaining one of the world's most recognized and appreciated brands, having a presence in over 200 countries.

ABOUT THE BRAND

Coca-Cola is one of the world's most well-known and well-recognized beverage brands. John S. Pemberton created it in 1886 in Atlanta, Georgia. Coca-Cola's product portfolio has grown to encompass various beverages, including Coca-Cola Classic, Diet Coke, Coca-Cola Zero Sugar, and numerous flavored versions.

The brand is significant in over 200 countries and territories; millions enjoy it daily. Coca-Cola has a long history of marketing and promotion, including its famous polar bear and Santa Claus efforts around the holidays.

Coca-Cola has also been involved in sponsorship and partnership activities, including a long-standing engagement with sporting events such as the FIFA World Cup and the Olympics.

BRAND'S MISSION

The aim of Coca-Cola is to refresh the world, inspire moments of optimism and happiness, add value, and make a difference. Their mission is to bring people together via the enjoyment of their beverages while also contributing to a better, more sustainable society.

WHAT THE BRAND STANDS FOR

Coca-Cola's brand is renowned for joy, inclusion, quality, community involvement, innovation, sustainability, global reach, and tradition. These values define the brand and govern its actions and initiatives.

DEMOGRAPHIC

Coca-Cola is enjoyed by individuals of all ages from youngsters to the elderly.

- Children and teenagers account for approximately 25-30% of Coca-Cola consumers.
- Young Adults account for about 35-40% o Coca-Cola customers.
- Adults account for roughly 25-30% of Coca-Cola customers.
- Seniors account for approximately 5-10% of Coca-Cola customers.

COLORS OF COCA-COLA

Red: Coca-Cola's primary and most prominent color, representing energy, excitement, warmth, and brand awareness.

White: When used as a backdrop, white offers contrast, purity, and a modern touch to Coca-Cola's branding, blending heritage with contemporary appeal.

Black: Coca-Cola occasionally uses black as a secondary color. Black conveys sophistication and timelessness, giving the brand depth. It's frequently employed for typography and accents, improving the aesthetic appeal.

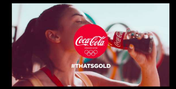
Silver: Silver is used sparingly to provide a touch of richness and refinement to limited editions or packaging, particularly during special events or holidays. It might represent prestige and high quality in the brand's goods.

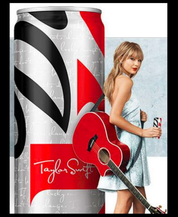
FAMOUS COLLABORATIONS

Coca-Cola has mindfully collaborated with notable people, each bringing a unique appeal to the brand's marketing endeavors. Taylor Swift, a global pop sensation, has appeared in Coca-Cola advertising campaigns, thereby assisting the brand in connecting with a younger audience and maintaining its relevance among the youth.

Selena Gomez, a multidimensional artist recognized for singing and acting, has also appeared in Coca-Cola's marketing efforts. Thanks to her large following, she helps Coca-Cola engage with her devoted fan base and generate enthusiasm about the brand.

Coca-Cola has a long history of working with athletes at significant athletic events such as the FIFA World Cup and the Olympics. These collaborations include athlete endorsements and specific marketing campaigns.



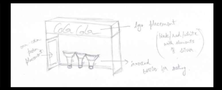


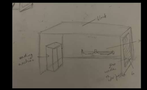
FAMOUS CAMPAIGNS

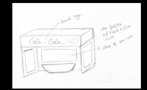
Coca-Cola's Christmas advertising efforts depicting Santa Claus have had a tremendous influence on the present image of Santa Claus.

Coca-Cola has a long-standing collaboration with McDonald's, and Coca-Cola products are a mainstay in McDonald's locations worldwide. Coca-Cola has long been a sponsor and partner of the Olympic Games since 1928.

SKETCH IDEATIONS







CONCEPT

The idea is to design a bus shelter that offers passengers a pleasant and engaging experience while simultaneously serving as a functional waiting area and creating a sense of proximity to the brand.

A vending machine that exclusively sells vintage Coca-Cola bottles will be placed in this creative shelter. These bottles were recognized for their distinctive and timeless designs, evoking nostalgia and restoring the essence of an older era representing the brand's rich heritage.

The brand's signature red, black, and white colors will be prominently used in the shelter's design, which will help create a minimalist look. This will capture the brand's visual identity and give customers a unified, immersive brand experience.

Additionally, the shelter will have a special display panel that will showcase the great advertisements from various historical eras. By displaying famous posters that once covered the streets, this one-of-a-kind feature will provide commuters an insight into the company's rich advertising history and develop a closer bond with its enduring appeal and cultural significance.

THE PROCESS:

THE ADV:

FINAL MODEL